

Planning, Revising, and Editing

Quick Review

REVISING changes what writing SAYS (cutting wordiness, adding specifics, fixing coherence, clarifying ideas). EDITING fixes surface mistakes (spelling, capitalization, punctuation, grammar). Strong writers do BOTH - and they fix the actual problem without creating a new one. A 'before' and 'after' that simply adds more words is not a real revision.

PART 1 — READ

Read the passage. Then answer the questions.

Student first draft - My Visit to the Science Museum (with line numbers)

(1) Last weekend I went to the science museum with my class. (2) It was very, very, very interesting. (3) We did a lot of stuff there.

(4) The first exhibit we went to was about the human body and stuff. (5) It had a big model of a heart that you could walk inside. (6) The model was as big as our classroom and was painted red, pink, and dark purple inside.

(7) Their was also a section on space, which I thought was cool. (8) we saw a meteorite that you could actually touch with you're hand. (9) The meteorite was heavier than it looked.

(10) The museum was good. (11) I had fun. (12) It was a good trip.

PART 2 — PRACTICE

Read each before/after revision and the student draft. Answer the questions about what improved and what is still off.

- Sentence (2) reads: It was very, very, very interesting. Which REVISION is BEST?
  - It was very very interesting!!!
  - It was the most super amazing wonderful place that I ever went to in my whole life.
  - Inside the museum, every room held something I had never seen up close before - from a walk-through heart to a meteorite cold enough to leave a tingle on my palm.
  - It was, in my opinion, kind of sort of pretty interesting I guess maybe.

2. Sentence (3) reads: We did a lot of stuff there. Which revision adds SPECIFIC DETAIL without creating new problems?
- A. We did a whole lot of really interesting and cool stuff in there for hours.
  - B. We walked through a giant model of a human heart, touched a meteorite, and watched a live demonstration about static electricity.
  - C. We did some things, including various items of educational interest.
  - D. We did stuff that was awesome and stuff that was cooler than other stuff.
3. Sentence (7) reads: Their was also a section on space, which I thought was cool. Which is the BEST EDIT?
- A. There was also a section on space, which I thought was cool.
  - B. Their was, also a section, on space which I thought was cool.
  - C. There was also a section on space (which is the area beyond Earth's atmosphere) which I thought was cool.
  - D. Their, a section on space, was also cool I thought.
4. Sentence (8) reads: we saw a meteorite that you could actually touch with you're hand. Which is the BEST EDIT?
- A. we saw a meteorite that you could actually touch with your hand.
  - B. We saw a meteorite that you could actually Touch with you're hand.
  - C. We saw a meteorite that you could actually touch with your hand.
  - D. we saw a meteorite that you could actually touch with you're Hand!!!
5. Sentences (10), (11), and (12) end the draft with three short, similar sentences. Which is the BEST REVISION?
- A. The museum was good. I had fun. It was a good trip. The end.
  - B. The museum was a good trip that I had a good time at on my good day.
  - C. Walking back to the bus that afternoon, I was already trying to figure out which exhibit I wanted to come back to first - probably the meteorite, but the giant heart was a close second.
  - D. Museum = good. Trip = fun. Day = good times had by all.
6. Compare BEFORE: The first exhibit we went to was about the human body and stuff. AFTER: The first exhibit we walked through was about the human body, including the giant heart model and a clear plastic display of a working lung. What kind of revision is this?
- A. EDITING for punctuation only.
  - B. REVISION that replaces vague language (and stuff) with SPECIFIC details (giant heart model, clear plastic display of a working lung).
  - C. REVISION that makes the sentence shorter and more general.
  - D. EDITING for a homophone error.

7. Read this sentence the writer wants to add: The plastic lung filled and emptied every six seconds, and a small red light blinked each time it 'breathed' out. Where would it BEST fit?
- A. Inside paragraph 2, with the giant heart description.
  - B. Inside paragraph 3, with the meteorite description.
  - C. After sentence (12), as a brand-new conclusion.
  - D. At the very beginning, replacing sentence (1).
8. Which option correctly identifies a revision that FIXES ONE PROBLEM but CREATES a new one?
- A. Replacing very, very, very with one strong adjective like striking (cuts wordiness; keeps meaning).
  - B. Replacing a lot of stuff with named exhibits (adds specifics).
  - C. Capitalizing we at the start of sentence (8) (fixes capitalization).
  - D. Replacing The museum was good with The museum was good and it had a lot of nice good stuff inside it that was really good (tries to fix flatness but ADDS repetition and the word good three more times).
9. Rewrite this flat sentence to be more SPECIFIC: The food at the cafeteria was good. Add at least ONE sense detail and ONE named food.

10. Read this sentence: their going to the library after lunch and i can't wait to go their too. Find and FIX all FOUR surface errors (two capitalization errors and two homophone errors). Write the corrected sentence.

Explanations

1. C	C cuts the empty intensifier very, very, very and replaces it with SPECIFIC, image-rich content drawn from the rest of the draft - that's true revision. A only removes punctuation. B swaps one stack of intensifiers for another. D weakens the statement with hedges.
2. B	B swaps the vague phrase a lot of stuff for SPECIFIC nouns and verbs (walked through a heart, touched a meteorite, watched a demonstration). A only adds intensifiers. C is a thesaurus rewrite that stays vague. D adds wordiness AND repetition.
3. A	A fixes the homophone error ( Their then There ) and changes nothing else - clean editing. B adds incorrect commas. C edits the spelling but adds a long, off-topic definition. D rewrites the sentence in a way that creates a confusing comma-only structure AND keeps the homophone error.
4. C	C makes TWO needed edits: capitalizes the first word of the sentence ( We ) AND fixes the contraction error ( you're then your ). A fixes only the contraction. B fixes capitalization but keeps the homophone wrong and also over-capitalizes Touch . D adds noise (caps on Hand , extra exclamation marks) without fixing the real errors.
5. C	C combines and revises three flat sentences into ONE specific, image-rich closing that ties back to two earlier details (meteorite, giant heart). A just adds The end . B reuses the same vague word. D collapses into note form, not real sentences.
6. B	The revision is about CONTENT: the vague and stuff becomes specific examples. A is wrong (no punctuation changed). C is wrong (the AFTER is longer and more specific). D is wrong (no homophone is involved).
7. A	Paragraph 2 is the HUMAN BODY paragraph, and the lung is part of that exhibit. A new specific detail belongs with related details. B is the space paragraph - wrong topic. C drops new evidence after the closing. D would replace the topic-introducing first line.
8. D	D names a revision that tries to fix one problem (flatness) but introduces MORE wordiness and repetition. A, B, and C all improve the draft cleanly without creating a new problem.
9.	Answer: Examples: (1) The grilled cheese had crisp golden edges and stretched into long strings of melted cheddar when I pulled it apart. (2) The cafeteria pasta was buttery, salty, and dusted with so much parmesan I could smell it from across the table. (3) The tomato soup came in a thick paper cup, warm enough to fog my glasses on the first sip. Accept any rewrite that (a) replaces the vague word good with SPECIFIC details, (b) names at least one actual FOOD, and (c) uses at least one sense detail (smell, taste, sight, sound, or touch). NOT acceptable: a rewrite that just adds intensifiers (very good, super good) without specifics, or a rewrite that names no actual food.

Answer: Correct: They're going to the library after lunch and I can't wait to go there too. Accept ONLY a sentence that fixes all four errors: (a) capitalizes They're at the start, (b) fixes the homophone their then They're, (c) capitalizes I, and (d) fixes the second homophone their then there. Reject any version that fixes only some of the errors, introduces new errors, or rewrites the sentence beyond fixing those four issues.
