

Using Dictionaries and Thesauruses Effectively

Quick Review

Match the TOOL to the question. A dictionary gives definitions, pronunciation, part of speech, and example sentences — use it when you need to know what a word means or how to say it. A thesaurus gives synonyms and antonyms — use it when you have a word but want a more precise or vivid one. A glossary lives at the back of a textbook and defines special terms as that book uses them. When a dictionary lists more than one meaning, use the part of speech and the context of the sentence to pick the right entry. With a thesaurus, never grab the first synonym — always check that it actually fits your sentence.

PRACTICE

Which numbered definition fits the sentence, and how do you know? Use the PART OF SPEECH and the SENTENCE CONTEXT in your answer.

Explanations

1. B	The sentence describes two neighbors ending a dispute by agreement, which is exactly definition 2 . A is the make a decision sense (no decision is described here). C is the technical optics sense (no lens). D ignores a clear match.
2. D	Cozy carries the warm, comfortable feeling for a room . A ( pleasant ) is correct but generic. B ( polite ) describes a person's manners, not a room. C ( respectable ) describes social standing, not comfort. This is the classic thesaurus trap: every word is a synonym for nice in some sense, but only one fits the context.
3. C	A textbook's glossary defines key terms with the exact meaning the book uses, often shorter and more focused than a general source. A may give too much detail and may not match the textbook. B gives synonyms, not a definition. D gives a general definition but might miss how the textbook frames it.
4. A	In the sentence, bank describes what the pilot DOES to the plane — it is a verb meaning to tilt when turning , matching bank <sup>3</sup> . B (money place) and C (row of things) are noun senses with no fit. D (river bank) is also a noun and doesn't describe an action by the pilot.
5. B	Winning the race gives Daniel confidence, so strode (walked with long, confident steps) fits perfectly. A trudged = walked heavily as if tired or unhappy — the opposite of how a winner feels. C shuffled = dragged the feet — lazy or weak. D limped = walked because of an injury. All four are real synonyms for walked , but only one matches the context.
6. C	A dictionary gives pronunciation (here, /nɪkʰr.nɪl/), so C is the right tool. A and D ask for synonyms — a thesaurus is the right tool. B asks for an antonym — also a thesaurus job. The line between the two tools is the key idea of this lesson.
7. A	A uses refrain as a verb meaning hold back from doing something — the part of speech and the context both match definition 1. B, C, and D all use the noun sense (a repeated song line), so they fit definition 2 instead.
8. D	Wicked matches the meaning morally bad that fits a villain. A unwell means sick. B naughty is mild and used for misbehaving children. C mistaken means in error, not evil. Every choice is a real synonym for bad in SOME sense, but only one captures the right shade for a villain.
9.	Answer: Definition 2 fits: address here is a noun meaning a formal speech . The clue made one final tells you the word is a noun (you can make a speech ) and the context — a senator stepping down — points to a formal speech, not a home address (1) or the verb sense (3).
10.	Answer: (a) Tiny (or petite ) sounds warm and affectionate — it suggests cute and small . (b) Runty suggests weak or unhealthy — the smallest of a litter, often used as criticism. (c) A writer should not grab the first synonym because synonyms share a DENOTATION but differ in connotation and context fit; the wrong synonym can change the meaning or tone of the whole sentence.
