Quick Review

A sentence can introduce a key concept, refine it, contrast it, or signal a shift. Ask how the sentence functions in the paragraph and the whole text.

PART 1 — READ

Read the passage. Then answer the questions.

The Sentence That Changes the Article

The first paragraph of the article praises community gardens for producing vegetables, beautifying vacant lots, and giving neighbors a reason to meet. The details are positive and concrete.

Then the author writes, But a garden that begins with enthusiasm can fail without a plan for water, leadership, and long-term access to land. This sentence shifts the article from celebration to analysis.

The next paragraphs explain three problems: volunteers burn out, water bills rise, and landowners may sell lots after soil has been improved. The author does not use these problems to reject gardens. Instead, she shows why successful gardens require agreements before the first seeds are planted.

The final paragraph returns to the hopeful opening but with a qualification: community gardens thrive when communities plan for ordinary difficulties, not only inspiring opening days.

PART 2 — PRACTICE

Use the passage to answer each question. Choose the best answer and support short responses with evidence.

Explanations

1. B	The correct evidence directly proves the stated inference rather than merely mentioning the same topic.
2. A	The correct answer covers the whole passage, while the distractors are too narrow, too extreme, or unsupported.
3. C	The context around the word points to this meaning in this passage.
4. D	The correct answer explains the role the detail plays in the development of the text.
5. B	The correct conclusion follows from multiple details, not from a single isolated word.
6. A	A strong summary includes the main conflict or idea and the outcome without personal opinion.
7. C	This choice overstates or invents an idea that the passage does not prove.
8. D	This detail is specific enough to support analysis in a written response.
9.	Answer: A strong response quotes or closely paraphrases: This sentence shifts the article from celebration to analysis. Then it explains how that detail proves the inference instead of only repeating it. Use exact wording from the text or task, then explain your reasoning.
10.	Answer: A strong response states: The article refines a positive view of community gardens by explaining the planning needed for them to last. It supports the statement with a precise detail such as: This sentence shifts the article from celebration to analysis. Use exact wording from the text or task, then explain your reasoning.
